'Don't panic' as swine flu strikes

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A HAVERHILL GP is urging patients not to panic after the first case of swine flu was confirmed in the town.

Dr Mary Selby, of the Christmas Maltings Surgery in Camps Road, said the number of people infected with the H1N1 virus in East Anglia remained low, but there were a few confirmed cases in the region, including at least one in Haverhill.

She urged patients to stay at home if they have flu-like symptoms and phone for advice rather than risk possibly spreading the infection.

Dr Selby said as the level of swine flu infection across the world had increased to tens of thousands, it was now seen as inevitable that the infection would spread across the UK at some point, possibly in the autumn.

She said: "The disease is generally mild in most people. We do not know when cases will escalate making swine flu more likely, so if you have flu-like symptoms at all, please stay at home and phone."

It's 100 up for lovely Lillian

A DEVOTED mother, grandmother and great-grandmother has celebrated her 100th birthday with her family.

Lillian Mitchell has lived at Shearman Court in Mill Road, Haverhill, for two years and previously spent much of her life in Sturmer. Her birthday was on June 9 and she received a card from the Queen.

A party was held at Shearman Court on Saturday, which was attended by some of her seven grandchildren and many great-grandchildren. Mrs Mitchell had to bring up her son Michael on her own after becoming a war widow and puts her longevity down to plenty of hard work.

Sue Jeffery, manager at Shearman Court, said: "She is a really lovely lady."

Fete gets go-ahead

A SCHOOL which could not hold its annual summer fete due to building work last year is hoping this year's event will attract plenty of visitors. The St Felix Home School Association is organising the event on Saturday, June 27 at the school in School Lane, Haverhill, from 11am to 2pm. There will be a bouncy castle, face painting, refreshments, tombolas, a raffle, traditional and more unusual stalls, plus a car boot sale and craft stalls. Anyone interested in pitches at £5 can book in advance on (01440) 762961.

Egg-throwing finale

LIVE music by Haverhill Youth and Community Band will be among the attractions at the Withersfield Garden Fete to be held on Saturday, June 27 at Jacob's Manor, by the village green. The event begins at 1pm, with adult entrance £1, plenty of games and stalls, a barbecue and cream teas, a prize raffle and an egg-throwing finale. All proceeds will go to St Mary's Church.

Bigger Stars N Jars?

RE-SUBMITTED plans to build a single-storey rear extension to provide an additional retail area at the Stars N Jars shop at Bury Road, Stradishall, have been submitted to St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

Change of use

PLANS for change of use of a residential annexe to become a separate dwelling at Prospect Terrace, Kedington, have been submitted to St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

Loyal Linda lands a plum new uniform

A WOMAN who has worked at her local supermarket for almost three decades has helped launch its latest new uniform – the sixth style she has worn since she started. Linda Draper, 46, has made the 25-minute journey in from her home in the tiny village of Belchamps St Paul to the Sainsbury's store in Haverhill for the past 28 years.

She started at the former store in Jubilee Walk, Haverhill, then moved to the current store at Haycocks Road when it opened almost 20 years ago.

On Monday, Linda and all the other staff at the supermarket said goodbye to their former blue and orange uniforms and put on new plum-coloured ones.

Linda, who currently works on the children's clothing section at the store, is now on her tenth different department and has no plans for a career change. She said: "When I left school, there were not many jobs about. I was taken on for my six weeks' summer holiday and 28 summers later, I am still here."

"What I like is that I have worked for 10 different departments and I have met some really nice people here."

Julie Collis, of Sainsbury's, said: "Linda is always cheerful and gets on with everyone. We used to get a lot of comments about the orange uniforms, about being 'Tango-ed'. We all got the chance to say what kind of uniforms we would like and the plum-coloured ones were chosen."

Father's Day fun with wet wellies and wacky races

WACKY races, riding crazy bikes and throwing wet wellies are just some of the fun and games on offer for dads at a Father's Day Fun event at Haverhill on Sunday.

The Haverhill Show committee is organising a series of events on the town's Recreation Ground this summer, as well as their traditional two-day Haverhill Show on Saturday, July 5 and Sunday, July 6, starting with the Father's Day Fun and car boot sale this weekend.

Mick Driver is chairman of the committee which organises the annual show – in association with the Haverhill Weekly News – which is the main fundraiser for LAMPH, the Haverhill-based charity for children and adults with learning disabilities.

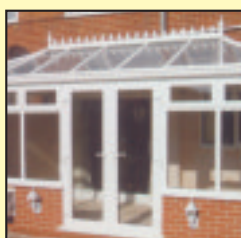

Mr Driver said it had been decided to hold more events for the town, but more volunteers were desperately needed for the committee and to help on the day.

Future events will include a five-a-side football competition and a car boot sale, in conjunction with a majorettes competition, on Sunday, July 19.

The boot sale starts at 8am and no booking is necessary.

Anyone who wants to help can call 07917 1121855 or (01440) 7663272.

Rail station may be back on track

IT'S been a rocky relationship, but it seems Britain's love affair with the railway is back on.

While we may complain about rising fares prices, overcrowded carriages and delays, passenger numbers are up by 50 per cent and there are plans to expand the country's rail network by restoring old lines and opening new stations.

The Association of Train Operating Companies (ATOC) says there is a compelling business case for reopening at least 14 lines shut by British Rail in the 1960s, given growing demand for rail travel.

Among the stations that could reopen are Wisbech, at an initial cost of £12 million for renewal of the station and the seven-mile single-track freight line between the town and March.

The ATOC report also revives the possibility of restoring the rail link between Haverhill and Cambridge at a cost of £120 million, although the business case here is less persuasive.

But excluding the massive capital costs, rail chiefs insist the rail link is commercially viable once up and running.

The Rev Malcolm Hill, chairman of the Cambridge to Sudbury Rail Renewal Association, formed in 1995, said: "We've been fighting for ages for this line, so it's very promising to hear the rail industry is thinking about it again."

"We were very unlucky to lose our railway station back in 1967, as it was a real borderline case. Back then, there was only 10,000 people in Haverhill and we were told if the population passed 18,000, then the decision would be revisited. We now have a population of 22,000, so there is definitely a case for it.

"Villages along the line have also grown hugely. Linton has 7,000 residents, Sawston has 4,000 and there is also the Abingtons, Long Melford and Sudbury."

"We collected 11,000 signatures in support of the plans, but couldn't get any interest from the rail industry. It would be expensive because parts of the track have been built on, but engineers say it is possible."

"It's great news that it's back on the agenda. There is a new generation of people who want to use trains to commute, go on holiday or day trips – it's said that our town doesn't have a railway station."

"In places where old lines have been reopened, passenger numbers have exceeded all expectations. I'm sure a rail link to Haverhill would be hugely popular."

The report follows the news that Cambridge could get a second railway station at Chesterton sidings at a cost of £20 million, while Ely could get one at Chettisham to deal with expansion north of the cathedral city.

Tim Phillips, chairman of Cast.Iron, which campaigned for a rail link between St Ives and Cambridge, said the ATOC report showed it was possible to revive old railway lines.

He said: "A £120 million rail link from Haverhill to Cambridge is good value when you compare it to the similarly-priced guided busway – that line would be three or four times longer than the busway and would serve a much bigger community."

"A guided busway is also very parochial, as it can only take you from one place to another. With rail, you are part of an unbroken metal ribbon that can take you anywhere in Europe."

"This report confirms what Cast.Iron has always believed – it was possible to revive the St Ives to Cambridge line. At the time, we were blown out of the water by estimates that it would cost hundreds of millions of pounds to restore the line. But this ATOC reports says it can bring back 14 lines for about £500 million."

"Compared to the £116 million spent on the guided busway, that money seems to be going a lot further."

"The busway was essentially built to serve Northstowe, which hasn't happened yet."

He pointed out the guided busway would not remove freight lorries from the A14.

"Rail provides the potential to take HGVs off the road and, the broader the network is, the more economical it is to transport goods by train."

Builder takes pub ban fight to the High Court

A BUILDER fighting a Pubwatch ban from all licensed premises in his home town has taken his case to the High Court.

Francis Boyle said the "illegal and unfair" ban, first imposed in February 2007, has had a "horrendous" impact on his life and should be overturned.

Haverhill's Pubwatch scheme prohibited him from entering any licensed premises in the town after an incident in the Black Horse pub, Camps Road, in December 2006.

Mr Boyle, 46, of Elm Close, has never been convicted of any offence in relation to that incident – and says he was the victim of an attack, doing nothing more than defending himself. London's High Court heard this week.

He is seeking a judge's ruling that he was denied a fair hearing in violation of his human rights and that the ban was illegal and irrational.

But Judge Mackie QC, who is hearing the test case, will first have to decide if Haverhill Pubwatch is a 'public authority' whose decisions can be challenged in the courts.

Mr Boyle's barrister, Thomas Cross, said the ban was originally for one year, but was reimposed, this time for two years, in February 2008 after Mr Boyle was allegedly seen drinking in the Black Horse. Mr Cross said it was still not clear why he had been barred.

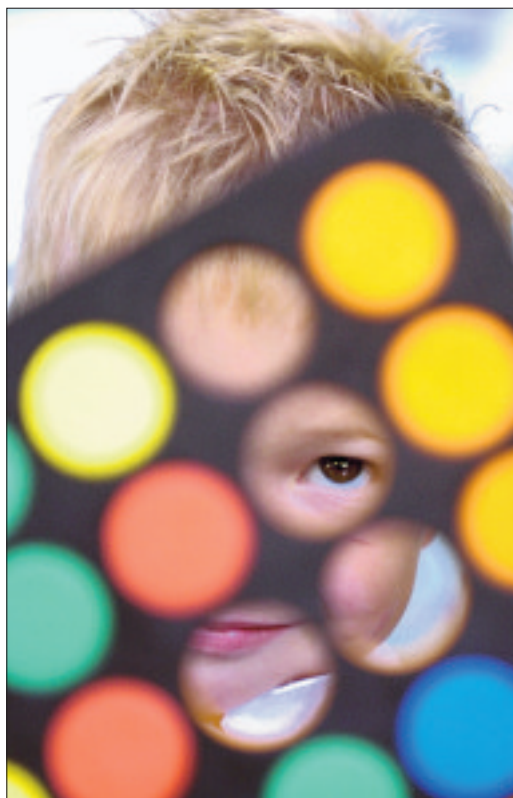

He told the judge: "The ban was made at a Haverhill Pubwatch meeting from which Mr Boyle was excluded. He was not invited to make any oral or written representations. He did not know why the order was made."

Arguing that the Pubwatch scheme worked closely with local police, the barrister added: "It's no skin off the nose of the police if someone is banned from licensed premises in a town."

"It is great for the police. Crime reduction figures improve and those who they perceive to be troublemakers can very easily be dealt with under the scheme."

But Charlotte Ventham, representing the Suffolk Chief Constable, an interested party in the case, speaking about the incident that triggered the ban, said it "was not agreed that the police accepted no offence had been committed; rather there was no evidence to take the matter any further".

Judge Mackie said he would reserve his decision in the case until a later date, due to the important issues involved.

Pupils enjoy some marvellous maths

TREASURE hunting, orienteering and measuring unusual objects was on the timetable for a group of primary school children faced with a series of outdoor maths challenges.

The normal timetable was put aside for the day at Coupals Primary School in Haverhill, when pupils were posed challenges both outside in the playground and inside the building.

Children from all years, aged from five to nine years, were put to the test, solving brainteasers in activities ranging from practical to advanced and challenging.

The school was pleased to receive funding for the day from the county council's Extended Schools budget.

Playground is closed after vandalism

VANDALS have forced a toddlers' playground to be closed after ripping up the safety surface surrounding the equipment and making it unusable.

The Castle Hill playing fields playground at Haverhill has had to be closed for refurbishment three weeks earlier than planned because of the vandalism.

Work had been due to begin on a £110,000 upgrade, designed to be used by children from neighbouring residential areas, on July 1.

However, the current equipment was declared unusable after the safety surface was last week badly damaged by vandals.

The nearby new pond has received a major facelift after Lottery funding was received and fishermen can now use it again.

Denise Moulds, of the Parkway Residents' Association, said: "It was very well used by the little ones, but you get a lot of bigger children up there at nights. I just cannot understand the mind of the people who do these things. I don't know what they are doing in a playground that is there for little ones.

"It looks really nice up there now and people are starting to come from further afield, some from the other end of town."

Cllr Anne Gower, chairwoman of the Haverhill Partnership and ward member for the area, said: "Unfortunately, repairing the surface to make it safe wasn't possible so near to the planned closure.

The utter thoughtlessness of those who vandalised the surface has prevented local children from being able to use the play area for the next month. We hope that when the play area reopens on July 31, it will be less vulnerable to this type of damage."

The work, being funded through a successful Play Builder bid of £50,000 and a grant from St Edmundsbury Borough Council of £60,000, will result in a grand design for children up to 12, ready for the summer holidays.

First flu case is confirmed

"Rest assured, doctors and nurses in Haverhill are going through this with you and we will all be going through this together."

Around 40 people in the town have been tested for the virus, but so far only one case has been confirmed.

Dr Selby reassured patients that as there was only one confirmed case at present, patients were "very unlikely" to have contracted swine flu.

Those currently with flu-like symptoms will probably not be suffering from swine flu, unless they have just returned home from a high risk area and have symptoms of flu-like illness.

Dr Selby said: "If either of these is the case, phone NHS direct or your surgery for advice."

"Do not go into the surgery or to Accident and Emergency departments unless asked to do so by a doctor or nurse."

Full swine flu updates can be found on the Christmas Maltings surgery website on www.christiasmaltings.co.uk and www.nhs.uk

The government has a pre-recorded swine flu telephone message on 0800 1513 513 or for advice call NHS direct on 0845 4647.

"It looks really nice up there now and people are starting to come from further afield, some from the other end of town."

Cllr Anne Gower, chairwoman of the Haverhill Partnership and ward member for the area, said: "Unfortunately, repairing the surface to make it safe wasn't possible so near to the planned closure.

The utter thoughtlessness of those who vandalised the surface has prevented local children from being able to use the play area for the next month. We hope that when the play area reopens on July 31, it will be less vulnerable to this type of damage."

The work, being funded through a successful Play Builder bid of £50,000 and a grant from St Edmundsbury Borough Council of £60,000, will result in a grand design for children up to 12, ready for the summer holidays.

First flu case is confirmed

"Rest assured, doctors and nurses in Haverhill are going through this with you and we will all be going through this together."

Around 40 people in the town have been tested for the virus, but so far only one case has been confirmed.

Dr Selby reassured patients that as there was only one confirmed case at present, patients were "very unlikely" to have contracted swine flu.

Those currently with flu-like symptoms will probably not be suffering from swine flu, unless they have just returned home from a high risk area and have symptoms of flu-like illness.

Dr Selby said: "If either of these is the case, phone NHS direct or your surgery for advice."

"Do not go into the surgery or to Accident and Emergency departments unless asked to do so by a doctor or nurse."

Full swine flu updates can be found on the Christmas Maltings surgery website on www.christiasmaltings.co.uk and www.nhs.uk

The government has a pre-recorded swine flu telephone message on 0800 1513 513 or for advice call NHS direct on 0845 4647.

No ifs and butts – No Excuses for cig litter

UNSIGHTLY piles of cigarette butts could become a thing of the past, as free portable ashtrays are being given away in West Suffolk this summer.

The campaign to ensure that cigarette ends are properly disposed of is being launched by St Edmundsbury Borough Council and local businesses are getting behind the campaign.

Cllr Peter Stevens, portfolio holder for environment at St Edmundsbury Borough Council said: "As part of our 'No Excuses' campaign, we are combating the excuses around litter.

"Some people think that as cigarette ends are so small, they are quick to degrade and it doesn't matter if they leave them on the ground.

"In fact, they are made from plastic and can take 80 years to break down."

Free portable ash trays will be available from council offices in Lower Downs Slade, Haverhill

Children's choir is a true inspiration

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A choir of Ugandan children, who are all orphans because of AIDS or civil war in their country, will soon be welcomed in Haverhill.

Churches in Haverhill are again delighted to host the Watoto Children's Choir, which consists of 25 children, aged 7 to 11 years. All the children are cared for by international sponsorship organisation, Child Care Ministries.

The choir will perform on Tuesday at 7.30pm, in the Old Independent Church, Hamlet Road, Haverhill. Everyone is welcome and admission is free, with donations invited and an opportunity to buy some of the choir's merchandise, which includes African jewellery, CDs and DVDs of the choir.

River of Life Community Church member Lynn Warboys said the choir had previously visited Haverhill two years ago and would again be hosted by local families.

She said: "They are an awesome crowd and it is a great night. Some of the little kids are just so inspirational. Most of them have seen their mums and dads die and some of them even say a bit about it, which is quite heart-wrenching. They wear traditional dress and sing some of their own music and some contemporary songs."

Watoto Child Care Ministries was born out of a response by Kampala Pentecostal Church in 1992 to meet the needs of orphaned children in Uganda. It is estimated that there are two million children in Africa orphaned because of civil war or as a result of the AIDS epidemic.

Watoto operates three children's villages and cares for more than 1,500 youngsters. The villages each have more than 130 homes, each housing eight children and a house mother. They also contain a complete school system.

Pc Rupert is county's best

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A HAVERHILL officer has been awarded a top county award – the Sheepshanks Trophy – by his force.

Pc Rupert Beynon won the award in recognition of his consistent high level of performance to the community of Haverhill, whilst achieving a balance between community contact, crime reduction and law enforcement.

Outstanding dedication and commitment was recognised at the Suffolk Constabulary Awards Ceremony, with more than 25 awards being presented to police officers and staff.

Pc Beynon, 39, previously won the top award in 2004 and said he was surprised to win it again, with strong competition from several officers nominated for their work during the investigation of murders in Ipswich.

Pc Beynon lives in Newmarket with his wife Sally and their four-year-old son Daniel and has spent his entire 12-year career with the Suffolk force, stationed at Haverhill. He originates from Kenilworth, in Warwickshire, and after studying for a degree in rural estate management, moved to Suffolk to join the force.

He said: "It was really nice to receive it and to be nominated by my sergeant and inspector. Haverhill is a great place to work, I really enjoy it. It is nice because you get to know people and it is almost like giving something back to the community."

"I was involved in the cemetery project to replace the wall and the alcohol ban and also a number of youth projects, including taking youngsters fishing. It is really about giving young people something different to do and I also work closely with Cangle Junction and the 30 people living there."

PCSO Timothy Hartup, based at Mildenhall, was a runner-up for the Sheepshanks Trophy and will be receiving a Taking Pride Award.

PCSO Hartup was recognised for his commitment and initiative at organising and supporting youth-related projects within his SNT villages. By helping to set up a youth club in Red Lodge and supporting local youth groups, he has been able to build up a positive image of the constabulary with young people.

Pupils' protest march could be world record

A GROUP of 87 primary school pupils took part in a protest march from their school gates in a bid to stop speeding drivers and break a world record at the same time.

The children, from Wickhambrook Primary School, took part in the march yesterday morning in an attempt to stop speeding drivers and break a world record for the largest 'walking bus'.

A walking bus is a safe and environmentally-friendly way for children to get to school, with adult supervision.

Many schools in the UK have set up a walking bus as part of their School Travel Plan.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

The school was joining tens of thousands of other children across the UK taking part in the record-breaking Walking Bus attempt, co-ordinated by road safety charity Brake.

The event aims to raise awareness about the appalling number of child pedestrians killed and injured by fast traffic and to raise funds for the charity's work supporting families who have been bereaved or seen a family member injured following road crashes.

Every day, around six children are killed or seriously injured while walking on Britain's roads, higher than in any other European country.

In England alone, 797 children on foot are killed or injured on roads each year, which is two children a day. 20mph zones are normal in many residential areas in Europe, but much rarer here, despite proof that they radically reduce child casualties.

More than 100,000 children around the UK were expected to simultaneously take part in the event and also hope to break the current record of 57,476 children and raise more than £70,000 for Brake's support services, including its support helpline.

Anyone can donate to Brake or find ways of fundraising for the charity by visiting www.brake.org.uk or calling (01484) 559909.

Outbuilding break-ins

Watch out for purse thieves

POLICE are urging shoppers to be vigilant following a number of thefts from women's handbags in town centres and other public places across West Suffolk over the past week.

At Haverhill, a woman's black vinyl shopping bag was stolen when it was left hanging on her shopping trolley between 1pm and 1.30pm on Saturday, in a clothes store on the High Street.

Two days earlier on the High Street, between 12.30pm and 1.30pm on Thursday, a woman shopping in a card shop had a mobile phone stolen from inside her shoulder bag.

Similar incidents were reported across the west of Suffolk, including one at Newmarket on Friday, where a woman using a zimmer frame had her purse taken by two women who asked her for directions. Other thefts were at Sudbury, Hadleigh, Long Melford and Bury St Edmunds.

Similar descriptions were given in several of the incidents of two white women with tanned complexions and two men who spoke with foreign accents.

Senior Crime Reduction Officer Dave Gilson said: "Busy town centres and other public places can attract opportunist thieves who target vulnerable people, whether they are elderly or distracted with children, or just those who are happy to help someone in a shop. We would ask shoppers to be on their guard."

the top secured with a zip or wear a shoulder bag across the front of your body.

Don't carry around large sums of money; don't keep your PIN with your bank cards and use a purse bell, which will alert you and others if someone tries to remove your purse from your bag.

If you help someone in a shop, keep hold of your bag at all times. If someone pushes or bumps into you, check your bag immediately.

If you find your purse or bag has been stolen, call police and cancel bank cards and mobile phones. A call to police as soon as the theft has been discovered may enable CCTV operators to scan the area for the offender.

Contest leads to healthy competition

A COLOURFUL painting of a street scene took first place in two hospitals' inaugural staff painting competition.

Sok-Leng Kang won a painting contest for staff at Addenbrooke's and the Rosie.

More than 40 staff from a range of departments entered, showcasing a diverse range of styles and influences.

Damian Hebron, art co-ordinator for Addenbrooke's

Arts, said: "We've been impressed by the standard and pleased that so many staff entered. We want to make this competition an annual event and we are now looking at introducing staff art workshops."

Shortlisted pieces are on display in the main corridor leading from the Addenbrooke's Treatment Centre to the main hospital. Sok-Leng Kang, a speciality registrar, won £100 of art materials. Runners-up were Janice Robertson, assistant practitioner, and Katie Bagstaff, paediatric team leader.

The competition, judged with the help of experts from Cambridge's Kettle's Yard gallery, Fitzwilliam Museum and Byard Gallery, was organised jointly between Addenbrooke's Arts and Addenbrooke's Life.

'Councils at fault in Iceland fiasco'

COUNCILS which invested millions of pounds in Icelandic banks just before they collapsed have been slammed as "complacent" by an influential House of Commons committee.

But Cambridge City Council leader Ian Nimmo-Smith said it had acted on warnings about the banks and hopes to claw back between 80 and 95 per cent of the £9 million it had invested.

The Communities and Local Government Select Committee report said there were lots of warning signs about the shaky state of the banks, which went under last autumn with nearly £1 billion of funds from scores of UK authorities.

The MPs said complacency, lack of expertise and inaction put taxpayers' money at risk. Their report said some warning signs emerged as early as 2006, but not all councils acted on them.

The committee said: "This inquiry has exposed a degree of misunderstanding, misinformation and complacency on the part of some crucial players, both within local authorities and in the wider financial sector, which contributed to the putting of taxpayers' money at unnecessary risk."

BY JOHN DOWNING

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

Cllr Nimmo-Smith said the council had kept a "continuing watch" over its investments and made no further deposits after warnings were issued in September 2008.

He said: "We will look at the comments the report has made about the availability of earlier signals and whether there was a robust enough basis to have affected our investment policies."

He said the council's investment practices have since been revised.

The council invested £4 million with Heritable and £5 million with Landsbanki.

Cllr Nimmo-Smith said: "The prospect for at least 80 per cent recovery of the £4 million with Heritable continues to be confirmed. We have been given a schedule of repayment dates from July this year."

"We have £5 million with Landsbanki. The advice from the consortium taking forward our claims and working on refunds is that we will get of the order of 95 per cent of that."

"The news is better than we reported in April."

Armed robbery accused is sent for trial

A MAN arrested in Haverhill after a police chase across Suffolk and Cambridgeshire has been sent for trial at Peterborough Crown Court.

Robert John Inman, 36, of Medeswell, Orton Malborne, Peterborough, will make a preliminary appearance at the Crown court today.

He was remanded in custody when he appeared at Peterborough Magistrates' Court on Friday and no application for bail was made.

Inman is accused of possessing a firearm with intent to endanger life and robbery, both of which incidents were alleged to have taken place last Tuesday.

He was one of two men who were arrested in Newton Place, Haverhill, the following day.

The pursuit is said to have started in Peterborough, when a police van was allegedly hijacked at gunpoint and a second vehicle was then hijacked near Conington.

The second man, who has not been named, has been remanded to return to Parkside police station, in Cambridge, on June 25.

Balanced on her ballet pointes, Rachel Dodds gives a little twirl for the camera – before dissolving into giggles.

"See, I can still do it," she laughs. "But I don't think Darcey Bussell has got anything to worry about..."

Rachel has been passionate about dancing since she was little. To see her now, whizzing round the back garden in her ballet shoes, it's hard to believe she's a 40-year-old mum-of-two, and still harder to believe that she's battled hydrocephalus – water on the brain – all her life.

The condition, diagnosed in her late teens, has caused Rachel all kinds of problems, from headaches and memory loss to a fear she might never have children.

And, since she met and married husband Anthony, the couple have had many ups and downs: the highs include having two beautiful sons, and the lows include almost losing their eldest boy at birth – and Anthony's diagnosis with cancer.

"I always say that if I wrote a book the publisher would just send it straight back on the grounds nobody would believe it," admits Rachel, with a laugh. "But I'm a cup half-full kind of person and always have been, I think."

"Yes, there have been times when I felt angry. And, of course, I've shed some tears. But you have

ALICE RYAN meets a mum of two who has spent a lifetime coping with illness – "If I've learned anything it's that you have to keep looking forward and never give up" – and dancing is just one of her talents to pick yourself up, shake yourself off and get on with it. You just have to keep walking the path."

Rachel, who lives in Gazeley, first showed signs of hydrocephalus as a small child – though it wasn't diagnosed until her late teens. "I had problems with my eyesight and my hearing and I always had a headache," she says. "My mother took me backwards and forwards to the doctor, but they could never get to the bottom of it: I think they thought I was a peculiar child who didn't want to go to school, to be honest."

Rachel's main love was, of course, dancing. From a young age she threw herself into ballet, tap, modern – and showed a real talent for them all.

But, much to her frustration, Rachel struggled to remember routines and, when turning in a circle, would find herself veering off in the opposite direction to her classmates.

"I think my teacher thought I was a bit of a clown," she admits. "In fact, I really was trying."

When Rachel's school friends (and even her sister, 18 months younger) hit puberty, she realised something else was wrong: her body just wasn't developing. "I had no chest, no periods, nothing," she explains. "I felt like I was being left behind..."

By that stage, aged about 14, Rachel's headaches had become steadily more and more serious. "They were very bad in the morning, so bad I used to throw up," she says. "But I'd been to the doctor so many times; after a certain amount of time I came to accept it, I suppose."

At 16, doctors decided to give her a course of hormones, designed to kick-start her system.

"On the fifth or sixth day I was supposed to bleed," explains Rachel. "But I didn't. I was so cheesed off! I never wanted to go back to the doctor again. I just wanted to be left alone."

With her boyish figure, Rachel admits feeling envious of her friends' curves. "I thought 'Maybe I need to be thinner? Being thin could be my thing,'" she explains. "I think it had something to do with being in control too: apart from what I ate, my whole life felt like it was out of my control."

"It got pretty bad. I'm 5ft 5½ins and I went from about nine and a half stone to just under six. And that's when, finally, everyone sat up and took notice."

Whether it was a conscious thing or not, it was a cry for help.

Reluctant to return to the doctor, Rachel says "reality kicked in" and she started to eat normally again. But in the wake of her extreme diet, weight piled on. Feeling self-conscious, Rachel says she even felt awkward on the dance floor; when teachers suggested she apply for dance college, on leaving school, she refused.

Then, out of the blue, she lost all feeling in one side of her face. Suspecting a problem with her teeth, she went to the dentist. "He said 'I hope you don't mind, but I've been having a look through your medical notes. Do you get headaches?'. Of course, I said 'God, yes!'"

A head X-ray showed a swelling in Rachel's brain – indicative of hydrocephalus. "I don't remember the moment they told me," she admits. "I think I've blanked that out. But in a funny way I remember feeling relieved: it was like 'Thank you! I wasn't making it up!'"

In 1988, aged 20, Rachel had brain surgery to fit a cranial shunt, allowing fluid to drain out of her head. A matter of days after the operation, Rachel had her first period. The fluid build-up in her brain had, it transpired, been putting pressure on her pituitary gland, suppressing her hormone levels.

"Although they knew I was ovulating normally, they said they didn't know how much damage had been done," adds Rachel. "And they had no idea whether I could have children."

After the operation Rachel was given a new lease of life: she finished with her boyfriend, took a secretarial course and started work at a building society where a colleague set her up on a blind date – with Anthony.

Falling in love, the couple married in 1992. And then, two years later, Rachel fell pregnant. "I had what I thought were the symptoms of shunt failure," she says. "When the doctor said 'You're pregnant' I didn't believe it... It was a miracle really."

Still dancing at every opportunity, Rachel was playing Prince Charming in a show at the time. "They had to let my costume out almost daily," she laughs. "I don't think the audience were expecting a pregnant Prince Charming."

But, the moment Edward was born, Rachel's elation turned to terror: weighing little over 5lbs, he was blue and foaming at the mouth. Tests showed he had a series of birth defects, collectively known as Vacterl Syndrome. Teddy, as he is now known, was rushed in for emergency surgery to reconnect his oesophagus with his digestive system: when he was born, it ran straight into his lungs. As well as having bowel problems, he only had one kidney.

"We nearly lost him," remembers Rachel, with a shudder. "He developed pneumonia and it was tough and go. But he's tough: he's now 14 and he's had more operations than years in his life."

Edward began to thrive and, by the time his little brother Charlie was conceived, the Dodds' life was on a pretty even keel. But Rachel's second pregnancy proved a nightmare: her shunt failed, she collapsed and ended up in a coma for almost a week. She then had to have two further operations, to revise the shunt.

Charlie, now 12, bounced into the world at almost 8lbs, a happy and healthy baby. Once Rachel had recovered from surgery, life again returned to normal.

And then, five years ago, Anthony was diagnosed with testicular cancer – requiring surgery and chemo. "Like I said," adds Rachel, "you just have to keep walking that path."

Anthony, who works at Cambridge Airport, made a good recovery. But, in the September of 2006, the Dodds noticed Edward's back was looking a bit skinny and his heart felt like it was racing. Doctors found that his blood pressure was sky high – and his heart and kidney were failing.

Whisked to Great Ormond Street, Ted was given emergency dialysis, heart surgery (to insert a mechanical valve) and put on the waiting list for a donor kidney. Ironically, Anthony was a perfect tissue match for his son but, so soon after cancer treatment, he was not allowed to donate.

"The staff at Great Ormond Street saved Ted's life, it's as simple as that," adds Rachel, who says his seven-hour heart op was "the longest seven hours of my life". Ted received a donor kidney in January last year, from a man who died in a motorbike crash. "You can't just stomp up and say 'Ta,'" continues Rachel. "But we can't thank that man's family enough."

Returning to school at the earliest opportunity,

Ted is, Rachel says, very determined and outgoing – a "born performer like his mother". "And this family wouldn't function without Charlie. He never, ever moans or complains."

To mark their joint 40th birthday, Rachel and Anthony held a huge party at Newmarket's Catholic Church. Instead of presents, they asked for donations for Great Ormond Street – and held an auction in aid of the hospital too. To date, they have raised around £5,000.

Ted has just been asked to speak at a fundraiser for The Tick Tock Club, hosted by Gary Lineker; the club is raising money for kidney, heart and lung treatment at Great Ormond Street.

The whole family are, adds Rachel, living life to the full; throughout everything, she has continued to dance (and, as she's proved, can still pirouette in her ballet pointes).

"If I've learned anything it's that you have to keep looking forward and never give up," says Rachel. "I guess that's where the cup half-full thing comes from. You have to look on the bright side, don't you?"

'Postcode lottery' for rape victims

RAPE victims still face a "postcode lottery" over whether their attackers are brought to justice, according to a report.

Equality campaigners the Fawcett Society said the latest figures obtained from the Ministry of Justice demonstrate a growing gap in rape conviction rates between police force areas.

Women who report rape are 11 times more likely to secure a conviction for rape in some areas than others, it said.

In 2007 in Cambridgeshire, Essex and Suffolk, the conviction rate was 3.1 per cent, while in Hertfordshire, it was 6.5 per cent and in Bedfordshire, it was 6.7 per cent.

Cambridgeshire, Essex and Suffolk all showed a decrease in their conviction rates compared with 2006 figures - from 3.2 per cent, 4 per cent and 6 per cent respectively.

Katherine Rake, director of the Fawcett Society, said: "The appalling figures in most police force areas reveal women continue to face a postcode lottery when reporting rape.

"Rape should be treated with the same professionalism as other crimes, with consistency in initial response to victims and investigation.

"Co-operation between the police and the CPS is also crucial if the prosecution of rape cases is to improve."

She added: "It is a national scandal that thousands of victims have no access to justice, and frequently face a culture of disbelief and delayed responses."

Plans for travellers' sites are revealed

BY CHRIS HAVERGAL

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

DEVELOPMENT bosses last week unveiled potential sites for at least 88 new travellers' pitches in south Cambridgeshire.

Locations for a total of 149 pitches – at nine new settlements and as expansions of existing ones – were revealed.

These will be whittled down to at least 88 in a proposed consultation for 13 weeks from July 10, but the proposals have sparked concern among families in affected areas.

The largest potential developments are at the Sandy Park site on Chesterton Fen Road, on the edge of Cambridge, and new sites include spots in Cambourne, Fulbourn, Bassingbourn, and the yet-to-be constructed town of Northstowe.

Several other possible sites are located on the fringes of Cambridge.

Bosses at South Cambridgeshire District Council say the region has a set number of pitches it needs to find by 2021 under regional planning strategies and argue the rights of travellers – the biggest ethnic minority in the district – must be respected.

They hope to have drawn up a list of recommended sites to be considered by the council and planning inspectors by next June.

Cllr David Bard, the council's new communities chief, said: "At this stage, nothing is final. We have made a firm commitment to involve the community in all stages of the preparation of the plan.

"I will be ensuring we have the means in place to consult effectively with the public so that everyone who wants to can have their say on proposed sites and, if they wish, put forward alternative sites for consideration."

But Cllr David Morgan, who represents Cambourne on the council, said he believed residents would have their "arms up in disappointment" at the village's selection.

He said: "If there are travellers' sites proposed in Cambourne I want them to be identified on plans so house buyers can decide if they want to buy houses there.

"I don't think Cambourne is sustainable enough to take travellers' sites, and I think we already have enough problems –

I'm not saying travellers bring problems, but they bring special needs."

If the consultation on the gypsy and traveller development plan is given the green light at the council's new communities meeting tomorrow, comments will be invited online, by post and at a series of exhibitions planned across the district.

These will be at Willingham Village Hall on July 20, Cottenham Village College on July 22, The Limes in Bassingbourn on July 24 and Milton Community Centre on July 31, and take place from 1pm to 8pm.

The idea for creating a day for children to honour their fathers began in Spokane, Washington. A woman by the name of Sonora Smart Dodd thought of the idea for Father's Day while listening to a Mother's Day sermon in 1909.

Having been raised by her father, William Jackson Smart, after her mother died, Sonora wanted her father to know how special he was to her. It was her father that made all the parental sacrifices and was, in the eyes of his daughter, a courageous, selfless, and loving man. Sonora's father was born in June, so she chose to hold the first Father's Day celebration in Spokane, Washington on the 19th of June, 1909.

In 1926, a National Father's Day Committee was formed in New York City. Father's Day was recognised by a Joint Resolution of Congress in 1956. In 1972, President Richard Nixon established a permanent national observance of Father's Day to be held on the third Sunday of June. So Father's Day was born in memory and gratitude by a daughter who thought that her father and all good fathers should be honoured with a special day just like we honour our mothers on Mother's Day.

The idea for creating a day for children to honour their fathers began in Spokane, Washington. A woman by the name of Sonora Smart Dodd thought of the idea for Father's Day while listening to a Mother's Day sermon in 1909.

Having been raised by her father, William Jackson Smart, after her mother died, Sonora wanted her father to know how special he was to her. It was her father that made all the parental sacrifices and was, in the eyes of his daughter, a courageous, selfless, and loving man. Sonora's father was born in June, so she chose to hold the first Father's Day celebration in Spokane, Washington on the 19th of June, 1909.

In 1926, a National Father's Day Committee was formed in New York City. Father's Day was recognised by a Joint Resolution of Congress in 1956. In 1972, President Richard Nixon established a permanent national observance of Father's Day to be held on the third Sunday of June. So Father's Day was born in memory and gratitude by a daughter who thought that her father and all good fathers should be honoured with a special day just like we honour our mothers on Mother's Day.

Time travels to take in festival

A SOLO comedian is calling all fans of Dr Who to ensure their time travels include Haverhill on Friday, June 26.

Toby Hadoke presents Moths Ate My Doctor Who Scarf, which is due to land at Haverhill Arts Centre, as part of the Haverhill Festival.

Charting the rise, fall and rise of a television legend, Hadoke presents a personal, satirical and razor sharp comic odyssey charting the Doctor's triumphs and disasters — while also following Hadoke's progress from child to man, through obsession, joy and disappointment.

The award-winning show is described as part memoir, part tribute, part stand-up, always funny and sometimes touching.

A spokesman for the show added: "An intimate knowledge of Doctor Who is not required, although a disdain for the BNP, football hooligans and Hollyoaks would be useful."

BY JO DEEKS

Steven Moffat, Dr Who writer, said: "Non-fans will laugh their heads off (my wife did) and fans will shout 'Yes, that's it exactly'."

So whether you have been glued to the Dr Who series over the decades, or just started watching the latest adventures of the legend, this show is full of promise.

Toby Hadoke is also renowned for his topical stand-up comedy — with its occasionally uncompromising political slant — and has appeared in Peter Kay's Phoenix Nights, Coronation Street and Channel 4's Shameless.

The show starts at 8pm. Tickets are £10 from the box office on (01440) 714140.

I was no loss town's teaching profession, says Jan Ravens

JAN Ravens will step on stage at Haverhill Arts Centre tomorrow night as part of the Haverhill Festival.

Some of her ex-pupils from the town may be surprised to see how the trainee teacher at Castle Manor Upper School in 1979/80 ended up making them laugh instead of learn.

Jan said: "I wasn't very good as a trainee teacher, hopefully I am a bit better as an impressionist.

"I particularly remember a really nice group of sixth formers who used to do little plays with me and we used to go into hospitals and old people's homes to perform them.

"I used to take a class called 4C and there was a boy called Lee Clark and I used to dread teaching him.

"I was appearing in, writing and directing a Footlights panto at the same time and I realised that what I really wanted to do was perform.

"I was interested in teaching and I am still interested in drama. Schools are so obsessed with SATs and results that people are forgetting to nurture young people's creativity."

"The world has got new problems and if you don't encourage creativity we will end up in a state of stasis.

"I was no loss to the teaching profession, but in this show I try to look at how you create a character and teach the audience to do community impressions."

Baritone revives old tunes from America

BARITONE Benedict Nelson will appear with Haverhill's professional orchestra, the Arnold Sinfonia, at Haverhill Arts Centre on Sunday

He will join conductor Kevin Hill in a rare performance of Old American Songs by Aaron Copland. These 10 songs are adaptations of well-known American spirituals and folk songs, including Simple Gifts and I Bought Me a Cat.

The concert will also include the first performance of Serenade by Kevin Hill, a piece of music dedicated to cystic fibrosis sufferer Stewart Billson, who died in 2001 aged 19.

There will be also a chance to hear the suite from Masques et Bergamasques by Faure and Dvorak's Czech Suite, both brimming with beautiful melodies

At 25, Benedict, 25, has amassed a considerable number of operatic roles, performed at the Wigmore, Barbican, Cadogan, and Royal Albert Halls, and under the batons of conductors such as Sir Simon Rattle, Sir David Wilcocks and Sir Neville Marriner.

The concert will begin at 7.30pm. Tickets are £10, concessions £6 and £2, available at the door or from Haverhill Arts Centre on (01440) 714140. Visit www.haverhillsinfonia.co.uk

Ancient and modern mix from Africa

Their spectacular performance will feature works from their new album Paye Paye. Tickets are £7.50 and £5 and the music will start at 7.30pm.

There's a real mix of entertainment lined up over the next couple of weeks.

Star of BBC Radio 4's Dead Ringers, Jan Ravens has made her own brand of topical comedy. Her show, A Funny Look at Impressions, will take place on tomorrow at 8pm. Tickets are £12.50.

Jimmy Greaves, one of England's best ever goal scorers, is now an entertainer, and arrives in Haverhill on Saturday with his great friend and agent Terry Baker.

An Evening With Jimmy Greaves includes amusing anecdotes from his life as an after dinner speaker, TV personality and truly great footballer. Kick-off is 7.30pm and tickets are £19.50.

The Lat Dance Club leads an introduction to Latin American Dance during a workshop which will allow participants to try the different dances such as the Cha Cha Cha, Rumba and Samba. It's not necessary to have partners for this two-hour workshop, so no excuses not to step out on Saturday at 11am. The workshop costs £8.

Haverhill Keyboard Club welcomes Nicholas Martin as the guest on Tuesday at 7.30pm.

Past resident at Turner's and Wicksteed Park, he has more than 100 concert and dance engagements lined up during 2009, plus two new CDs and a DVD in the pipeline. Tickets £7.

In 1966, the BBC played only two hours of rock and roll every week, but pirate radio blasted rock and pop from the high seas 24 hours a day.

The story of pirate radio is told in The Boat That Rocked (15) an ensemble comedy, featuring a host of Brit talent, in which the romance takes place between young people and pop music. It is showing on Monday at 1.30pm, and then on Monday June 29, and Tuesday, June 30, at 7.45pm. Tickets £5 and £4.

There is a change to in the World Cinema Season programme – instead of Paris 36 (12A), the arts centre is showing The Grocer's Son (12A) on Monday at 7.45pm.

The story follows country boy Antoine, living in Paris and delighted to be far from his parents and their grocery shop in the south. But when his father suffers a stroke the prodigal son must return to take over the business.

Fill the garden with some heaven scent

Planting some highly-fragrant nemesia in pots on my patio recently made me start thinking about the importance of scent to a garden.

You can have wonderful aromas on your patio, or further up the garden the smell of deliciously-perfumed shrubs can fill the air.

If you only have room for one large scented plant at the back of your border, make it a mock orange (philadelphus), whose white flowers appear in profusion in June and July and whose rich orange-blossom fragrance can be enjoyed from a good distance away in the warm summer evenings.

It grows to around six feet (1.8 metres), although dwarf and taller varieties are available. It is easy to grow almost anywhere – in poor soil, salt-laden air or other inhospitable environments – but for the best results give it a sunny spot.

Of course, the obvious suspects to include in your scented scheme are honeysuckles and lilies, which will have a more intoxicating fragrance grown within an arbour or sheltered patio than in windy, exposed sites. Roses, too, provide a heady perfume.

Position fragrant blooms where they will be most appreciated. Visitors can brush against low hedges of lavender on a garden path, and pots of fragrant annuals such as the

by Hannah Stephenson

trailing Surfinia 'Blue Vein' can be mounted on walls at sniffing height, while night-scented stocks and nicotiana planted below a window will create a wonderful scent indoors on summer evenings.

Dianthus, a genus which incorporates pinks, border carnations and sweet Williams, can also add the exotic aroma of cloves, while border phlox (Phlox paniculata) flowers from mid-summer to autumn and generates a delicious perfume.

Many herbs are also wonderfully aromatic as well as decorative. Thyme can trail over walls in rockeries or scree beds, rosemary has fantastic silver-grey, needle-like leaves and sage, basil and mint also add their own scent.

Conifers can also provide scent as well as height and year-round interest.

Cupressus Goldcrest Wilma, an evergreen conifer with bright green, lemon-scented foliage, is often bought small to add height and foliage contrast to both summer and winter pots, although if planted out its eventual height will be six feet.

Each year I plant wigwams of sweet peas both in my borders and in patio pots, which will give me fabulous colour and scent throughout the summer. You need to cut them regularly to produce more flowers throughout the season, so it's a double whammy as the smell of bunches of colourful sweet-peas permeates through the house as well.

Many aromatic plants require full sun and can tolerate drought conditions, such as scented geraniums, whose leaves emit an enticing aroma. Mediterranean plants often like well-drained, gritty soil and a sunny aspect, so if you have heavy soil you may be better off raising the planting area to improve drainage and also bring the plants with their flowers and foliage closer to the nose.

BEST OF THE BUNCH Campanula

They come in all sizes, from the delicate harebell to the massive chimney bellflower which tops seven feet (2.1 metres), so there is a place for the campanula in every garden. Combining well with other cottage garden favourites such as white lilies and red peonies, they also make good companions for shrub roses with pink or cream flowers. Border campanulas, in hues of blue, white or pink, thrive in sun or partial shade and some will flower for weeks on end, such as C lactiflora 'Prichard's Variety'. In fact, Gardening Which? trials found that C lactiflora and many of its varieties have large trusses of flowers lasting two to three months over the summer. Many of the taller varieties need staking.

GOOD ENOUGH TO EAT Coriander

If you like Indian or Thai food then you'll know how important coriander leaves are to add a cooling flavour and vivid green colour when garnishing dishes. It also works particularly well in home-made salsas and in some Middle-Eastern dishes. It's also used as a spice, producing hard, peppercorn-sized seeds which are ground and added to Indian food. If you want both leaves and seeds, buy separate varieties named for either leaf or seed production. Despite its exotic flavour, it is hardy and can be sown directly into the soil in May. Pick a sunny or partially-shaded spot for leaves and full sun for seeds, and sow little and often.

Start cutting leaf coriander as soon as the leaves are big enough to use. Leave the plants for seed production to send up 2ft (60cm) flower stalks and delicate, small white flowers in summer. By the end of summer, the seeds will be developing. When they have turned a buff colour, cut the stems and hang them upside down in a warm, airy place and tie paper bags over the flower heads to catch any seeds that drop.

Why sell the traditional way?

Get Estate Agents to value it and put it on the market.

Show people around the property (mostly "nosy parkers" & sightseers).

If no offers received after 2 or 3 months, reduce price.

Show more people around.

Eventually accept an offer at between 5 & 10% off the advertised price.

Hope the sale doesn't fall through (over 30% of sales don't reach completion).

Once price agreed, wait a further 3 months for sale to complete.

Work out how many £000s it has cost you in reducing the price, making mortgage payments, paying Estate Agents fees and legal fees since you started the process (on average, 7 months ago...)

Sell your property the CXG way...

The simple alternative

- Pay no Estate Agent's fees
- Pay no Legal fees
- No further mortgage payments
- Have cash within days (Instead of months)

"The S40 is a great example of a car maker cleverly refining existing technologies to make a seriously green car. It's not just about a low CO2 figure, though. The S40 is great to drive, safe, has enough space for the family and, crucially, is cheap to run, too."

For the second year running, the British-built Mini Cooper S picked up the award for the greenest sports car, and BMW's 318d was named best green executive car.

At different ends of the market, the Fiat 500 Stop and Start was awarded best green supermini, while the Audi A8 2.8 V6 was the greenest luxury car.

Prius gets solar panels

Solar power: For Prius' ventilation system.

CLIMBING into a car that's been parked for a while on even a moderately sunny day can be an uncomfortable experience and is likely to provoke full-blast operation of the air conditioning, using up fuel and increasing emissions.

Toyota has solved the problem with a new solar-powered ventilation system that keeps the interior cool, with no need for the engine to be running. And to make sure the temperature is just right before you get inside, it has produced the world's first Remote Air Conditioning control, operated using the car's key fob.

The two innovations form a Solar Pack available as an option on T Spirit versions of the new Prius.

Solar panels, neatly integrated into a sliding sunroof, power the electric air circulation fan. Running independently from the engine, it can cool cabin temperature down from 80C to 45C, so there is less need for the air conditioning to be used to achieve a comfortable level when you return to the vehicle.

The system can be activated as the driver leaves the car. One minute after the ignition is turned off, the air intake mode switches to "Outside Air Ventilation" and the blower mode switches to "Face" to ensure the most efficient performance. To avoid cabin air that has already been cooled being vented straight away, the system starts operating after 10 minutes, continuing until it is switched off, or the ignition is turned on.

Toyota's Remote Air Conditioning is a world-first. Thanks to the power available from Prius's large capacity hybrid battery, it can run for up to three minutes before the car is occupied (such a system could not be supported by a conventional 12V car battery). It is activated by pressing the A/C button on the key fob for one second.

New Prius is on sale from August 1, priced from £18,370 on the road. The Solar Pack option costs £1,450, including VAT.

Keep up-to-date with the latest new Prius, news, views, images, videos and more on Today/To tomorrow, Toyota's official blog, at blog.toyota.co.uk.

Prius gets solar panels

Solar power: For Prius' ventilation system.

CLIMBING into a car that's been parked for a while on even a moderately sunny day can be an uncomfortable experience and is likely to provoke full-blast operation of the air conditioning, using up fuel and increasing emissions.

Toyota has solved the problem with a new solar-powered ventilation system that keeps the interior cool, with no need for the engine to be running. And to make sure the temperature is just right before you get inside, it has produced the world's first Remote Air Conditioning control, operated using the car's key fob.

The two innovations form a Solar Pack available as an option on T Spirit versions of the new Prius.

Solar panels, neatly integrated into a sliding sunroof, power the electric air circulation fan. Running independently from the engine, it can cool cabin temperature down from 80C to 45C, so there is less need for the air conditioning to be used to achieve a comfortable level when you return to the vehicle.

The system can be activated as the driver leaves the car. One minute after the ignition is turned off, the air intake mode switches to "Outside Air Ventilation" and the blower mode switches to "Face" to ensure the most efficient performance. To avoid cabin air that has already been cooled being vented straight away, the system starts operating after 10 minutes, continuing until it is switched off, or the ignition is turned on.

Toyota's Remote Air Conditioning is a world-first. Thanks to the power available from Prius's large capacity hybrid battery, it can run for up to three minutes before the car is occupied (such a system could not be supported by a conventional 12V car battery). It is activated by pressing the A/C button on the key fob for one second.

New Prius is on sale from August 1, priced from £18,370 on the road. The Solar Pack option costs £1,450, including VAT.

Keep up-to-date with the latest new Prius, news, views, images, videos and more on Today/To tomorrow, Toyota's official blog, at blog.toyota.co.uk.

Scrappage scheme is working a treat in town

Drive Vauxhall: Astonishing scrappage and other deals.

Drive Vauxhall's new and used car deal are quite incredible!

AS the demand for new cars under the scrappage scheme stays strong, one Haverhill dealership has found the scheme to be hugely successful.

Drive Vauxhall on Duddery Hill has found the exchange scheme, part-sponsored by the Government, has brought in a whole lot of new customers.

"We're doing extremely well," says Drive Vauxhall's general manager Sarah Ferrari, "we've tripled what we thought it would be."

"We thought there'd be a five per cent increase," Sarah explains, "but one in three new cars we're selling is now being sold via the scrappage scheme."

The most popular vehicles to be sold are the Corsa and the Astra, with the Astra 1.4 Active being the current number one choice. "We're retailing the Astra 1.4 Active at £8,999 including the scrappage and all other marketing programmes – this for a vehicle which is usually priced at £15,245 before road tax."

Not only is this a spectacular deal, but at Drive Vauxhall the rules on exactly what sort of vehicle qualifies for the scrappage-price new car are very relaxed.

"We offer £2,000 off for any Astra, Insignia, Zafira or Astra Twin Top regardless of how long they've had the car and regardless of its age," says Sarah.

Drive Vauxhall also offers a £1,000-off deal when part-exchanging on selected used cars. Around 70 per cent of the used car stock are Vauxhalls but there are other marques on the forecourt.

"Come down and have a look," concludes Sarah – and you have to say it's an offer which you'd be crazy to refuse.

Proton's GEN-2 gets autogas sales boost

AN increasing number of British motorists are opting out of the volatile petrol car market, according to Proton's LPG (liquid petroleum gas) vehicle sales figures.

The only manufacturer in the UK to offer an LPG-ready car at no extra conversion cost to the motorist, Proton has seen a 375 per cent uplift in sales of its GEN-2 ecoLogic in the last month alone – making it one of the few marques to increase sales (2.3 per cent) in May 2009 compared to the same period last year.

Proton is championing LPG as a cost and carbon-cutting way to drive as sales figures reflect a growing dissatisfaction among motorists towards the over-inflated price of petrol. With petrol prices currently averaging £1 per litre (going as high as 110.9p) at the pumps, LPG costs motorists just under half the price at around 52p for the same amount. For the average motorist driving 12,000 miles a year, this means a saving of around £670. Plus, under the scrappage scheme, the GEN-2 ecoLogic starts from just £7,995 (full price £9,995), making the LPG case even more appealing.

The GEN-2 ecoLogic is priced exactly the same as its petrol equivalent.

Further details from Peter Hedges Car Sales in St Ives, telephone (01480) 399390.

Samuel Ward Arts and Technology College Seeks Foundation Status

Notice is given in accordance with section 19(3) of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 that Samuel Ward Arts and Technology College Governing Body intends to make a prescribed alteration to Samuel Ward Arts and Technology College, Chalkstone Way, Haverhill, Suffolk CB9 0LD (a Community School). The proposed alteration is to Change School Category from Community to Foundation from 01 September 2009.

We are seeking Foundation Status for three reasons:

- The systems and processes we have developed over the last five years have made us an 'Outstanding' school. We want to ensure that these approaches are embedded and sustained and we believe that Foundation Status will enable us to do that.
- We have developed a culture of innovation and educational entrepreneurship which we believe has been critical to our recent success. Foundation status supports and promotes this type of culture by giving school leaders the freedom to decide how best to meet the needs of pupils, parents and the wider community.
- The school will be undergoing many changes over the next 2 years; moving from a 13-18 to 11-18 school, strengthening our partnership with other providers Post 16 and creating new links through Federation with our pyramid primary schools in both town and rural settings. Foundation Status will ensure that we will have the freedom to take the decisions necessary to ensure that our learners are secure through a period of transition.

This Notice is an extract from the complete proposal. Copies of the complete proposal can be obtained from:

Wratting boys pick up league accolade

WEST Wratting's under-12s rounded off a brilliant season by being named Cambridge and District Colts League team of the year.

Originally due just to collect their Division 12D championship trophy at the league's presentation evening at Cambridge Corn Exchange, players and officials were stunned to be called up to receive the last award of the evening.

Kevin Ager, the club chairman and under-12s manager, said: "I am delighted, absolutely delighted and chuffed for these players and this club.

"Words cannot explain the pride we have to receive this accolade above the other 309 teams in the Cambridge & District Colts League.

"Of course we like to believe we project everything we do at the club well and voluntarily apply all the things you should as a club.

"It's ironic that the previous evening I was delivering a speech at our club's annual presentation on how proud I was at the high level of conduct, respect, family values we had maintained at the club and the philosophy we have that in youth sports you should learn to play the game first and then win if you can.

"This totally endorses those statements."

The team-of-the-year honour is bestowed on the club who, over this and previous seasons, have communicated with league officials in a productive manner, not collecting any disciplinary points for their administration duties and gaining respect from referees, the players, parents, managers and coaches of the opposition for their conduct on the pitch.

League chairman Barry Brewer added: "Not only this, the unit of 16 players at Wratting scored a massive 178 goals in 20 league matches to also finish top scorers in the league."

Wratting's squad: Scott Ankers, Michael Torode, Jack Payne, Robert Foster, Ryan Cooper, Harvey Scotton, Chris Elliott, Leon Bailey, Andrew Gedny, Sam Ager, Oliver Stevenson (captain), Bill Bush, Lewis Massie, George Sheath, Aaron Millar, Earle Lambert.

SIMON Youngs did his bit with bat and ball as Haverhill won by 54 runs at Hadleigh in Division Two of the Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship on Saturday.

Youngs hit an unbeaten 52 while Dan Poole struck 50 and Dan Wilkins 30 as the visitors set a target of 221 for 8.
